

Finding the right act for a 402 seat house in a conservative part of Texas is always a challenge. What demographic will it appeal to...old, young, professional, student, religious...? Without hesitation I recommend The Dallas String Quartet as they appeal to every demographic.

Not only are DSQ immensely talented artists but craft an evening that melds the classical genre with the current seamlessly. The result is a performance that pleases all and is audience base developing. I have had more young professionals ask when they will return...looks like this year!

As a side bar they did a student master class that was life changing for our cities aspiring musicians ...if your budget allows I suggest this highly.

If you are building a season this is the act you want...creative, classy and very cool!
