

Mr. Gaddis,

I felt compelled to write to thank you and your company for having shared your talents with us at Artscape this past weekend. I was a reluctant attendee at initial performance. My boyfriend had it circled as being one of the few things he wanted to see at Artscape. Since he rarely states a preference in what we see there, I felt compelled to go along, without complaint. I might add that I was thinking the whole time how dreadful it would be. I couldn't have been more wrong. Not only was it not dreadful but one performance even moved me to tears, (which I will deny adamantly to anyone else). I left wishing I could have seen more. Wishing I could have shared the experience with every one I know. I haven't stopped talking about it. It was the highlight of the weekend.

Not only was I moved and entertained, but I left with a new found appreciation of dance. I can't wait to see other performances and will gladly attend such performances in the future. Thank you all for instilling a new found appreciation of your art and thank you again for sharing your wonderful talents with us here in Baltimore.
